GIGGLES IN MY BACKPACK

Give a Joke a Test Run

A tiny pause can help a listener hear the surprise. Try this short joke out loud in two different ways.

Read it once without stopping

What did the pencil say when the story went on too long? Get to the point!

Try a pause before the answer

Ask the question, count silently to two, then say the answer. Ask your listener which version was easier to follow.

My own silly question

My surprise answer

Open at Your Own Risk!

My backpack is full of jokes. I tried to zip it shut, but one of them got out. It’s probably hiding on the next page.

Ready for School

Why did the shoe bring its brother to school?

They do everything in pairs.

Why was the alarm clock sent to the principal?

It kept ringing before the bell.

The Backpack Speaks

Backpack: Why am I so heavy today?

Kid: I packed everything I might need.

Backpack: Even the rock?

Kid: That's for science.

Backpack: And the other rock?

Kid: That's in case the first one gets lonely.

Pencil Problems

Why did the pencil get a seat in the front row?

It had a point to make.

Pencil: I made one little mistake.

Eraser: Funny. I seem to be doing all the work.
